The Duke and Duchess of Sussex, Prince Harry and Meghan, recently announced that they intend to step back from their duties as 'senior' royals. This will mean stepping back from official duties and events, and the couple have stated that they will "work to become financially independent". They also plan to split their future time between the UK and North America, Meghan's home.

It has been reported that the Queen and other senior royals were not told about the announcement beforehand, and that they are "hurt" by the couple's actions.
